From the Connecticut Spectator.

MISCELLANY.

THE LADY AMONG MURDERERS.

IN a charming villa, situated in a truly romantic country, but at a considerable distance from the high road, baron R. was accustomed to spend the summer. His mansion built on an eminence—was perfectly adapted to his fortune. It was a spacious building—elegant both within and without—and displayed a good style of architecture. It was about 200 paces from the village.

Business obliged the baron to take a journey of a few days. His wife a young and beautiful woman—scarcely 20 years of age, remained at home. He took with him two of his best servants, and two others were left with the baroness. No violation of the public security had ever been heard of in that part of the country; and as the baroness did not belong to the timid portion of her sex, the ideas of danger were far from entering her mind.

The second evening after the baron's departure, she was just stepping into bed, when she heard an alarming noise in an apartment near her chamber. She called, but received no answer. The noise—screaming and confusion, grew louder every minute. She was at a loss to conceive what could be the matter, and hastily putting on a light garment, went to the door to discover the cause. What a horrid spectacle presented itself! !—Two of her servants half naked—were extended lifeless on the floor! ! !—the room was full of strange and ferocious looking men—the baroness' chamber-maid was kneeling before one of them—and instead of the mercy she implored—received the fatal stroke. No sooner did the door open, than two of the barbarians with drawn swords rushed towards it. What man—not to say that woman—would not have been struck with the utmost terror—and have given up life and every thing for lost? A loud shriek of despair—a flight of a few paces—a fruitless intreat for mercy—would probably have been the last resource of many thousands. The baroness, however, conducted herself in a different manner.

"And you have come at last?" exclaimed she, with a tone of heart-felt joy, and advancing her two assailants with a haste which highly astonished them both, and fortunately stopped their uplifted weapons. "Are you come at last?" repeated she, "such visitors as you I have long wished to see."

"Wished!" muttered one of the assassins. "What do you mean by that? But stay, I will ——"

He had already raised the cutlass, but his comrade averted the stroke. "Stop a moment, brother," said he, "let us first hear what she would have."

"Nothing but what is also your pleasure, brave comrades. You have made charming work here I see. You are men after my own heart, and neither you nor I shall have reason to repent it, if you will but listen for 2 minutes to what I have to say."

"Speak! speak!" cried the whole company.

"But be brief," added one of the fiercest of them, "for we shall not make much ceremony with you either."

"Nevertheless I hope you may if you but grant me a hearing. Know then, that I am, to be sure, the wife of the richest gentleman in this country—but the wife of the meanest beggar cannot be more unhappy than I am. My husband is one of the most jealous and niggardly wretches on the face of the earth. I hate him as I hate the devil—and it has long been the most fervent wish of my heart to get out of his clutches, and at the same time to pay him off all old scores. I should have left him many a time, had I been able to contrive how to escape. All my servants were his spies—and that fellow whose business you have done so completely, was the worst of them all. I am scarcely 22, and as I flatter myself at least not ugly. If any one of you chose to take me along with him, I should have no objection. I would accompany him no matter whither to the woods or to the village alehouse. Nor shall any of you have reason to prevent sparing my life. You are in a well stored mansion, but it is impossible you should be acquainted with all its secret corners. These I will shew you, and if I do not make you richer by $ 6000, then serve me as you have done my chambermaid."

Robbers of this kind, are certainly villains, but nevertheless they are still men. The wholly unexpected tendency of the baroness's address—the unaffected tone with which she spoke—the more than ordinary beauty of a young half naked female—altogether produced a powerful effect on men whose hands were yet reeking with the blood they had shed. They all stepped aside and consulted together in a low tone for some minutes. The baroness was left quite alone, but she betrayed not the least wish to escape. She heard two or three thus express themselves: "Let's dispatch her, and the game will be up." She, however, scarcely changed her colour, for the opposition of the others did not escape her acute ear. One, who was probably the captain of the banditti, now advanced towards her.

He asked twice or thrice whether they might absolutely rely on the truth of what she had said—whether she actually wished to be released from the tyranny of her husband and go with them—and whether she was ready to resign her person to one of them—to himself for instance, during the few peaceful nights they could enjoy? Having replied in the affirmative to all these questions—having not only suffered the warm embrace of the robber—but returned it—for, what will not necessity excuse? he at length said: "Come along then and lead us round. The devil trust you ladies of rank, but we'll however venture for once. But let me tell you before hand, that, were you ten times as handsome, this weapon shall cleave your skull the moment we observe the least disposition to escape or betray us."

"Then it will be safe enough—and were this the only condition of my death, I should outlive you all, and even the wandering Jew himself." The baroness smiled as she pronounced these words, hastily snatched up the nearest light, as though she had been as anxious as any of them to collect the plunder and begone—conducted the whole company through every apartment—opened unasked every door, every drawer and every chest—assisted in emptying them and packing up the valuables—joked with the utmost vivacity—jumped with indifference over the mangled bodies—spoke with the familiarity of an old acquaintance to each of the horrid troop—and willingly aided with her delicate hands, in the most laborious occupation.

Plate, money, jewels, clothes and other valuables were now collected together, and the captain of the banditti was already giving the order for their march, when his destined bride suddenly caught him by the arm. "Did I not tell you," said she, "that you should not repent making a friend of me and sparing my life? You may indeed have your fling in places that you find open—but 'tis a pity that you cannot come at treasures that are somewhat more concealed."

"Concealed!—What!—Where is something more concealed?"

"What! do you suppose, that among coffers so full of the most valuable effects, there are no secret places? Look here, and then you will be convinced of the contrary."

She pointed to a secret spring in the baron's writing desk. They pressed upon it, and out fell 6 rouleaurs, each containing $ 200.

"Zounds!" cried the leader of the robbers, "now indeed I see that you are an incomparable woman. I will keep you for this like a little duchess."

"And perhaps better still," rejoined she, laughing, "when I tell you one thing more. I am well aware that you must have had spies who informed you of the absence of my tyrant—but did they not tell you of the 4000 guilders which he received the day before yesterday?"

"Not a syllable—where are they?"

"O, safe enough! under half a dozen locks and bolts. You would certainly not have found them and the iron chest, in which they are deposited, had it not been for me. Come along comrades: we have finished above ground, and now we'll see what is to be done under it. Come along with me I say into the cellar."

The robbers followed, but not without precaution. At the entrance of the cellar, provided with a strong iron trapdoor, a man was posted as a centinel. The baroness did not take the least notice of this. She conducted the whole troop to a vault at the very farthest extremity of the cellar. She unlocked it, and in a corner of this recess stood the chest she had described. "Here," said she, giving the captain the bunch of keys, "here, unlock it, and take what you find as a wedding gift, if you can obtain the consent of your companions as readily as you have gained mine."

The robber tried one key after another but none would fit. He grew impatient, and the baroness appeared still more so.

"Lend me them," said she, I hope I shall find the way sooner. Indeed, if we don't make haste, morning might overtake us. Ha! only think, the reason neither of us could unlock it is clear enough. As welcome as your visit is to me, yet I have no scruple to confess that the unexpected arrival of so great a pleasure has flurried me a little. I have brought the wrong bunch of keys. A moment's patience, and I'll soon set that to rights."

She ran up stairs, and presently they heard her coming down again—but she went more slowly, as if out of breath with the haste she had made. "I've found them! I've found them!" cried she at a distance. She was now within about three steps of the centinel placed at the entrance of the cellar—when she made a spring at the wretch, who as little expected the dissolution of the world as such an attack. A single push with all her strength tumbled him down the stairs from top to bottom. In a twinkling she closed the trap-door—bolted it—and thus had the whole company secure in the cellar.

All this was the work of a single moment. In the next she flew across the court yard, and with the candle set fire to a detached pigstyes. The watchman in the neighboring village perceiving the flames, instantly gave the alarm. In a few minutes all the inhabitants were out of their beds, and a crowd of farmers and their servants hastened to their mansion. The baroness waited for them at the gate of the court yard. "A few of you," said she, "will be sufficient to put out this fire, or to prevent it from spreading. But now provide yourselves with arms, which you will find in abundance in my husband's armoury. Post yourselves at all the avenues of the cellar, and suffer not one of the Murderers and Robbers shut up in it to escape."

Her directions were obeyed, and not one of them escaped the punishment due to their crimes.

BOSTON, September 20.

The gentleman who came passenger in the Surprize, states, that he left Cadiz 28th July, when the situation of the country was found to be truly deplorable; that a thorough revolution had been effected, and Ferdinand firmly seated on the throne, with more despotic power than Napoleon ever assumed; that he had entirely abolished the constitution, with all the beneficial laws established by the Cortes; imprisoned great numbers of its members, as well as many public officers and citizens; and worst of all, had re-established the Inquisition. He had also levied a contribution of 150 million dollars, on his subjects, which from the impoverished state of the country, could not be collected, by the most arbitrary and cruel exactions. The same gentleman adds, that while at N. Brunswick he saw London papers to the last of July, at which time Lord Gambier was in the House of Lords, consequently not departed for Ghent.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.

WAR PROSPECTS.

It is ascertained that a large proportion of the British late in the eastern section of the state, and an extensive naval force from the Chesapeake, are concentrating in Halifax, where we have confident assurances from well informed men, that Lord HILL and a considerable addition of troops from England, were daily expected. Let those who have the watch LOOK OUT!

NEWS FROM THE EASTWARD.

Accounts from Nova Scotia and the district of Maine, state,

That a large part of the British troops which were lately in Penobscot river have returned to Halifax, together with sir J. SHERBROKE and adm. GRIFFITH, and a considerable proportion of the naval force. Sir John visited west Machia, Moose-island and St. Andrews in his return.

That the only troops the British have in the district of Maine are 600 on Moose island under col. GUBBINS, and 500 at Castine.

The British force we learn, which captured Machias consisted of only 20 marines, and 70 seamen; and that they found in the fort about 20 pieces of cannon. The garrison was said to have been surprised, but made their escape, some by the road to Blue hill, and others wandered in the wilderness, where they suffered severely. Previous to leaving Machias, the British made it a port of entry, and appointed a very respectable magistrate as collector.

The desertions from the British have not been so numerous as reported; the whole number does not exceed 40, all of whom are Germans, who immediately enlist in the U. S. service. The guns of the late frigate Adams had been brought to Castine.

It was the opinion of the British officers, that Castine would be kept as a naval depot for the winter, and would be strongly fortified.

POSTSCRIPT.

We understand that a gentleman who was taken at the battle of Bladensburgh, has arrived from Washington, that he was bearer of despatches from admiral COCHRANE to our government, supposed to relate to the exchange of of prisoners, as com. BARNEY is to sail to-morrow with those prisoners taken by us.

We further learn, that Adms. COCHRANE & COCKBURN had both sailed, one to Halifax and the other to Bermuda, in quest of reinforcements, that they both expressed a determination to make Baltimore another visit this season, and that this opinion the bearer of despatches had communicated to the acting secretary of war. 28 sail of the enemy, including 4 74's, are said to be ascending the Potomac.

From the Albany Argus, Extra, September 29.

Extract of a letter from an intelligent gentleman to his friend in this city.

SACKET'S HARBOUR, Sept 25.

"DEAR SIR,

"Agreeably to expectation, the army under the command of Gen. Izard have embarked, with the exception of a part of the 13th and 45th, and proceeded up the lake. They made a short but necessary stop at this place, the weather having been until the day of their departure, extremely opposed to their progress or operations.

"We were alarmed yesterday by the appearance of the fleet off the Harbour, it being some time before we ascertained it to be ours. The Lady of the Lake came in yesterday evening, and reports the following proceedings:—On Wednesday they weighed anchor at this place, and ran up to Genesee river with a favorable breeze—On Thursday disembarked the troops, and on Saturday morning came to anchor under the lee of Stony-Island. It being the old anchorage of the enemy, and too far distant to distinguish them clearly, caused us a momentary alarm, which however soon subsided. It was my belief that they would land as high up as the 40 mile creek, or Burlington Heights, particularly after Brown's late success, as it is evident that the enemy propose to retreat, and it will be in their power to throw so many obstructions in the way of our army, that it will be difficult for them to pursue with much prospect of success.

"A very considerable force is collecting at Kingston, and they are moving up all their gun boats and small craft from lake St. Francis and the St. Lawrence. I think it not unlikely, that their object is the destruction of this place. Intercepted letters from officers of high standing in their army and navy, have expressed their intention some time past, in confidence, and they now avow it publickly. Their plan of attack is contemplated with a co-operation of the fleet and army, and by regular advances. Their real object, however cannot be known, and all that is said on the subject by us, is mere conjecture. There is no doubt of its being an object of the first importance to them, and that they will attempt it, if they have the least prospect of success. The harbour is in a good state of defence, and there is no doubt but that the troops which are, will do honour to themselves and justice to their country; but they are not sufficient in number. Our country is new, and there could not be more than 3 or 4000 militia called out in season to be of service, after an actual alarm. It is said the new ship will bend her sails on the 28th when they will take to the lake, and our fleet haul in. If they should have the temerity to attack our fleet at their moorings, I have every reason to believe, that our Commodore will teach them a lesson similar to that of lake Champlain. Their two extremities have lately met a check, and I hope we shall do our duty in the centre."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Jefferson county, dated

"September 20, 1814.

"It has been extremely boisterous on the lake last week, and continues at this time attended with heavy rain. The brig Jefferson found herself on a lee shore at the head of the lake a few days since and was obliged to throw overboard 10 of her guns before she could work off. The Jones also sprung her water ways and became leaky. I am told the guns are replaced in the Jefferson. A schr. called the Ontario a transport with one gun, having on board provisions &c. for the fleet has not been heard of since the gale, and it is feared she has foundered; there were 4 officers accidentally on board, and the Commodore's clerk. The new ship at Kingston is probably nearly ready for sea; it is ascertained that she was launched and her mizen mast stepped on the 11th inst."

"Postscipt—Sept. 21.

"The wind has come to north east, and the fleet and transports have this morning gone up the lake, supposed for Niagara."

From the Boston Centinel Sept. 28.

IMPORTANT from the EAST.

The following is the most authentic information of the movements of the British squadron, late in the Penobscot, received since our last:

On Sunday the 18th inst. the enemy's force in Castine consisted of the Bulwark 74, a frigate, a brig and 14 transports, with about 2200 troops, belonging to the 29th, 62d and 98th regts. On the same day they were reinforced by a tender and a large transport from Machias, with some troops belonging to the 29th. On Wednesday, the 21st and 98th regts. and the foreign riflemen, &c. 1200 in all, embarked and fell down the river, after taking all the horses and provisions they could put in requisition; and on Friday last a squadron of one 74, 6 ships and 2 brigs, were seen leaving Penobscot bay, and after leaving land, steering SSW.

There is no truth in the report of any squadron being off Portland.

GOV. CHITTENDEN, of Vermont, on the 19th inst. issued his proclamation exhorting the citizens of that state en masse to unite in the defence of the common interest, and every thing dear to freemen; and enjoins upon all the officers of the militia the utmost vigilance and readiness to march to chastise and expel any invader. He says, "It is made known to me that British army is still on the frontier of our sister State, collecting and concentrating further operations of aggression."

IMPORTANT.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at N. Orleans, to his friend in N. York, Sept. 2*d.*

"An express has this day arrived from Mobile with information that a treaty has been made with the Creek Indians, by which the U. States are to receive about 23 millions of acres of land from the heart of their country. They bind themselves to have no connection with any other nation than the Americans; to raise the tomahawk when requested; and to bring over or extirpate, the refractory Indians now at Pensacola. There has been a large quantity of flour shipped within a few days to Pensacola, the exportation of which is this day prohibited by the Governor. Gen. Jackson is at Mobile—up and doing."

A letter from a gentleman of the first respectability at Rapide, Louisiana, contains the following:

"A letter har just been received by judge Johnston from Doct. Sibley, which states that an express has arrived at Natchitoches from St. Antonio, with a general pardon from the king of Spain to all the insurgent Spaniards—that 1500 troops will be instantly marched from St. Antonio to the Sabine—that Bayou Pierre will be taken possession of by the Spaniards, if not opposed by the American troops and militia of the country. The commanding officer of the troops of Natchitoches is determined to oppose the crossing of the Sabine by the Spaniards as far as he may be able. The letter also states that gen Ryon has acceded to the new government of Spain."

Movement of the Enemy.

An express just received by the Governor states, that 5 sail of the line, 6 frigates, 11 tenders, and a nest of smaller vessels, had on the 28th inst. arrived off St. George's island in the Potomac.

That admirals Cochrane & Cockburn had sailed from the bay an hour after a despatch vessel had arrived there.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1814.

We have received the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, which has been laid before Congress. Its length precludes a publication for the present; but it contains facts so alarming, and offers such a gloomy and distressing view of the money concerns of the nation, that it would be criminal to pass it over unnoticed.

According to this Report, the expenditures of the present year amount to forty-seven millions, two hundred and seventy thousand, one hundred and seventy-two dollars and forty-six cents, which, with the sum necessary to be left in the treasury, makes the amount to be raised off the people, forty-nine millions of dollars.

The whole amount of revenue, received and to be received for the present year, is seven millions nine hundred and sixteen thousand seven hundred and forty-four dollars, leaving the sum of forty-one millions, eighty-three thousand two hundred and thirty-six dollars to be raised by loans. Some of this money, the Report states, has been borrowed at a discount of 12 per cent. some at fifteen per cent. and some at twenty per cent. that is eighty-eight dollars, eighty-five dollars, and eighty dollars were paid by the money lenders, for one hundred dollars of stock. The last attempt the Secretary made was to borrow six millions of dollars, out of which two millions eight hundred, twenty-three thousand, three hundred dollars only were offered, and this sum at a discount of twenty per cent. or eighty dollars in cash for one hundred dollars of stock, being a loss to the nation of twenty dollars in the hundred. The loan, therefore, failed, over that sum.—In consequence of the failure of the loan in the United States, the Secretary has created stock, to the amount of six millions of dollars, which he has sent to Europe to be sold in that market. The result is not known. The Treasury is now behind, or in arrears, for the present year, the enormous sum of eleven millions six hundred thousand dollars. It is impossible to borrow. It appears that no money is now offered at any discount, and the Secretary says none can be obtained from the banks—the state of the country having disabled them from making specie payments. The Secretary therefore recommends the issuing of Treasury notes, at a higher interest, and the laying of new taxes, and to increase the OLD TAXES.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Great Neck, Long-Island, N. Y. to his friend in this town, dated October 3, 1814.

"I should have answered your letters before, but my mind has been fully occupied with the distress of the times.—We have expected the British both here and at New-York for some time past, and our apprehensions have not yet subsided. Every person not excuseable by law is obliged to turn out and go to camp, and the whole country appears in a military state; they are very strict, and the fine is very heavy. People are obliged to leave their farms and neglect every thing, and the distress among the middling class of farmers is very great; added to this, a great number of merchants in New-York have failed—the great house of Minturn and Champlin are gone for an immense amount—indeed, the times are beyond description dreadful, and without a speedy peace hundreds more will be ruined. Bank stock, and indeed every other stock down very low, no money to be had, all confidence is lost. The banks New-York, and also in the state, have stopped paying out specie. This is a gloomy picture, and it is necessary to act with great caution. I still am of opinion we will soon have peace, and firmly trust that the Almighty Ruler of all will look upon this nation with an eye of pity, and avert from us the great calamity occasioned by our individual as well as our national sins.

It was mentioned here this morning that a British 74 and a frigate were off Oyster bay, about 40 miles from New-York, and a few miles from us. Yesterday 20 sail of coasters took shelter in Cow bay. The British can pay us a visit and no one molest them; our situation is bad, but I will not leave home, but stay and take my chance."

SENATE OF THE U. STATES.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1814.

Mr. Lacock submitted the following motion for consideration:

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire and report to the Senate the extent of the injury done the Capitol and other Public buildings of the U. States by the enemy, the best means of preserving from further damage by the weather the remains of these edifices, and the expediency of an appropriation for repairing the same.

FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The following message was received from the President of the U. States by Mr. Coles his Secretary.

To the Senate of the United States.

I transmit to the Senate a report from the department of state complying with their resolution of the 26th ultimo.

JAMES MADISON.

October 3d, 1814.

The undersigned, acting as Secretary of State, to whom was referred the resolution of the Senate, requesting the President to cause to be laid before the Senate such information in his possession, respecting the existing state of the relations between the United States and the continental powers of Europe, as he may deem not improper to be communicated, has the honor to report:

That the relations of the United States with the continental powers of Europe continue to be those of peace and amity; nor is there, so far as is known to this department, reason to believe that any unfavorable change is likely to take place.

Measures have been taken to continue our diplomatic relations with France under the existing government, and to renew those with Spain, which have been for a time interrupted by the peculiar circumstances of that country. Diplomatic relations are also renewed with the United Provinces of the low countries. The new government has sent an envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States, who has been received.

With the other powers of the continent of Europe, our relations have undergone no change since the last session of congress.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JAMES MONROE.

The citizens of Pittsburgh are earnestly invited to patronize an undertaking, which appears to be so much wanted amongst them—the advantages resulting to the public must be evident, and it is hoped it will not be suffered to languish through want of encouragement which is certainly due from them to an establishment of this kind.

From the Argus, (Frankfort) extra October 4.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Urbanna to his friend in this place, dated

"Urbanna, Sept. 25, 1814.

"An express has arrived from Detroit to Gen. M'Arthur, in 6 days, in which Governor Cass says:

"A state of things has arrived in which your presence, with the force at your disposal, is essential to the security and preservation of the country. The Indians have re-commenced hostilities on every side of us: they are murdering the people and breaking up the settlements. There is now a large force of them in the immediate vicinity of this place, most probably within a mile of it, with the avowed purpose of attacking the town. We have no force adequate to the defence of the country, and none of the description proper for the pursuit of Indians My opinion is, that you should hasten on with the mounted men with all possible expedition." The express came by water, the land communication being entirely cut off.

DOCTOR HANDY'S,

WORM DESTROYING

LOZENGES,

A safe and efficacious Medicine for destroying and bringing away

WORMS.

MAY be used with safety by children of any age, or as common physic by the most delicate constitution, in any climate, without restraint of diet, or the smallest danger from cold. It may be given with advantage after the small-pox or measles; or as a family medicine, in any case where physic is necessary. The most frequent seat of worms in the human body, is the intestinal tube; but occasionally they have been found in almos every other part of the body.

Some very extraordinary cases of Worms, of an unusual form and appearance, being brought away by these Lozenges, have been made public in England, where the rapid sale of the medicine has exceeded any thing of the kind ever known before; and has also proved, to a demonstration, its approved superiority, as an athelminthick, to the numerous puffed-up, useless nostrums, which are daily advertised in the newspapers.

A single dose of this valuable Medicine has often been known to remove half a pot-full of the Teres or Round Worms.

A few doses are generally sufficient to remove the Ascarides, a small white worm, the seat of which is either the stomach or rectum.

Even the Tape Worm, at all times the most difficult to destroy, may, by persevering in the frequent use of this medicine, be totally removed in the course of a few weeks.

To select cases, with the names of people who are not known here, and living at a great distance, would be useless, and take up too much of the reader's time. We shall therefore only observe, for the benefit of those who are unacquainted with the symptoms of worms, that they are known or suspected to exist by a pain in the stomach, attended with a sudden depression of spirits before eating; at other times, the belly is hard, painful and distended with wind—costiveness, head-ache, and trembling of the limbs, with a sense of something rising in the throat—pale complexion and emaciated body, with weakness and irregular appetite—convulsive, epileptic, or falling fits—pains in the back and side, and frequent itching of the nose, and sometimes of the anus. The above, and a long train of afflicting diseases may all be occasioned by worms, which are much oftener the cause of death than is commonly believed.

The above valuable Medicine is sold only by

J. P. & J. W. SKELTON,

at their wholesale and retail Drug Store, at the corner of Wood and Third Streets, Pittsburgh.

Which have, within years past, cured an immense number of persons of both sexes, of every age, and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from Worms, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.

This Medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar title, so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary, a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age & constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent, and so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady, or an infant of a week old, should no worms exist in the body; but will, without pain, cleanse the stomach and bowels, of whatever is foul, and and thereby prevent the production of worms, and many fatal disorders. The Lozenges are efficacious in taking off all gross humors and eruptions, feverish complaints, and the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasian.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a disorder which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is also the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a vast number when in advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in suoh cases.

Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance and a mild taste.

Doctor CHISHOLM'S

Anti-Bilious Pills,

OF A QUALITY

Superior to any thing of the kind ever offered as a

GENERAL MEDICINE,

IN THIS COUNTRY,

NOw prepared from a recipe of the celebrated Dr. Chisholm, who, from a long residence in the West-India islands, has been enabled to favor the world with the most complete history, and most approved methods of curing all the BILIOUS DISEASES of those warm climates

This extraordinary medicine, which now for the first time is finding its way into general practice, has properties in the highest degree superior to the mercurial nostrums so frequently recommended by the name of Anti-Bilious Pills The extraordinary powers of this medicine as a solvent and evacuant of bile, is without example; never producing debility, or injuring the health, in the smallest degree, of the most delicate child, or weakly female.

The BILIOUS HEAD-ACHE, so much complained of in this country, and in the neighbourhood of rivers, is often removed by a single dose, which, to a strong man, is only five pills, and to a weakly woman, three. The same dose will generally remove the most excrutiating pains of the cholic, like a charm, by abusing the bile to pass downwards in the course of an hour or two.

Two or three Pills taken an hour before dinner, and repeated every third day, will effectually remove those disease arising from flatulency and indigestion, and by persevering in the use of them for a considerable time, the appetite will be improved, and strength and vigor will return.

Two Pills taken at bed time, with a cup of penny-royal tea, and repeated every second night, will effectually remove Rheumatic pains, wherever seated.

A single Pill, taken every fourth hour with a cup of flax-seed tea, will cure Pleurisy, promote expectoration, and relieve coughs and colds.

In CONSUMPTIVE CASES and diseases of the liver, no medicine ever yet discovered, has been known to perform such cures. Two Pills, taken every third morning, will be found sufficient, unless costiveness prevails; in which case, the dose may be increased according to the strength or constitution.

The Dysentery, Croup, and Summer Complaint on children, are soon relieved by a few doses. A single Pill to a child of 6 years old, and the dose increased according to their strength and age.

In Asthmatic or Phthisical cases, where the laborious breathing and great oppression, with faintings, are fast sinking the patient to the brink of the grave, a few Pills, taking one every hour, with fennel or pepper-mint tea, will often enable the patient to walk about in a few hours.

The above valuable Medicine is Sold ONLY in Pittsburgh, by

J. P. & J. W. Skelton,

At their Wholesale and Retail Apothecary and Drug Store.
